grace in this world, in that family members and friends, and priests and religious as members of religious families – anyone who loves God here upon earth – will be reunited in heaven, where the relationships established in this life do not distract souls from the love of God but increase it. In Father Dolan's book on St. Therese one finds this intimate union between heaven and earth foreshadowed not only in the earthly life of St. Therese, but also in the numerous graces that she obtains in heaven for souls here on earth, as devotion to her has spread throughout the world.

What Father Dolan wrote about St. Therese came about not simply through interviews that he was able to have with St. Therese's living sisters – Pauline, Marie and Céline, who at that time were still living in the Carmelite convent of Lisieux, and her fourth sister, Léonie, who was a Visitation nun in Caen – but also through a friendship that he established with them when they realized the important work he was doing to spread devotion to St. Therese in the United States. That is, Father Dolan was not a mere reporter who simply interviewed his subjects, but a priest who became friends with those he interviewed. Once he became known to family members of St. Therese, as well as to others of her contemporaries who knew her and played important roles in her life, or who became active after her life in the places where she had been, they were more than happy to assist him in the work he was doing to make St. Therese known throughout the world.

The "little way" of sanctity taught and put into practice by St. Therese is easy to grasp because it is simple. However, it needs some additional explanation to understand fully, and this is what is provided by Father Dolan. St. Therese's immense popularity, which spread rapidly after her death, is itself a fulfillment of her prophecy that she would do good upon earth. But one must ask what relationship this widespread devotion to her and the benefits derived from it have with devotions to all the other saints. Does devotion to her replace these older devotions? No, rather it completes them, for the life of St. Therese shows how all the great deeds of the saints of the past find their explanation in the simple love of God, which St. Therese made known with the simplicity of a child.

Of all the saints in heaven, standing out from them and above them all, is the Blessed Virgin Mary. It is St. Therese's unique devotion to Our Lady that explains in a marvelous manner St. Therese's place in heaven. This devotion was expressed in the following words that she wrote in a letter to her sister Celine about her love for Our Lady: "O Cherished Mother, I think that I am more fortunate than you, for I have you for Mother and you have not, like me, Mary to love."

These words at first seem contradictory, for how can any saint in heaven be more fortunate than Our Lady, for what greater joy can there be than to be the Mother of the Son of God? St. Therese was speaking here not as a theologian, but as a mystic, as a saint who knew not merely abstract truths about God and His Mother, but experienced Their love so intensely that she could express it only in words that might appear contradictory, but which lose their apparent contradiction when understood with the simplicity of a child. Objectively Our Lady is more fortunate than St. Therese, but St. Therese and all the saints have a unique joy lacking even to Our Lady – the joy of having the Mother of God as their own Mother. Such was the joy that Our Lord revealed in the moment of the greatest sorrow, from the Cross, when He gave to St. John His own Mother, to become the Mother of all the saints. And to the faithful of our times Our Lord reveals this love once again through the childlike simplicity of St. Therese.

LITTLE FLOWERS FROM ST. THERESE

"Last night, my dear friends, I completed the story of my first visit with the sister of the Little Flower, Pauline . . ."

"After my visit with Pauline I waited ten days in Lisieux and in that time I made three powerful friends. One was the sisters' Chaplain. The second was the famous Pierre, the guardian of the Little Flower's tomb. He had been miraculously cured years ago, by the intercession of the Little Flower, of an illness that was thought to be incurable and he has since been the guardian of her tomb. No one is closer to the Little Flower's sisters than Pierre, because he performs all their errands for them and has absolute charge of the chapel and of the tomb. The third friend was one Mademoiselle Violette, the guardian of the Little Flower's home in which she lived throughout her girlhood. Mademoiselle Violette is a sister of one of the Little Flower's novices, Sister Mary of the Trinity, who is still living [1929] in the Carmel of Lisieux. I couldn't have chosen more powerful friends, and I needed them in order to obtain what I wanted from Pauline.

"When after ten days I judged the time to be opportune, I wrote a letter to Mother Agnes, Pauline, asking three favors . . ."

Cardinal Merry del Val

Explains

The Truth of Papal Claims

Replying to an Anglican theologian living in Rome in 1902, who had challenged this future Cardinal, then Archbishop Rafael Merry del Val responded with this book, providing a profound explanation of the true nature of the Church – founded by Our Lord on the Rock of Peter and his successors, and including all the Apostles with their successors in union with the Pope. These govern the Church which is spread throughout the nations of the world, as living branches on that Vine that is the one Mystical Body of Our Lord Jesus Christ, Catholic and therefore universal. ## IN HEAVEN WE KNOW OUR OWN - SOLACE FOR THE SUFFERING

The book is a series of letters written to a young Catholic mother whose child had just recently died. Though seriously ill himself, Fr. Blot, S.J. wrote from his sickbed to console this poor woman in her heartbroken grief. For those interested in consoling or inspiring a loved one or friend in difficult times this book is a gem. He explained to her how families are reunited, good friends see each other, and all earthly sacrifice or suffering is amply rewarded. Drawing from our rich heritage of Catholic Teaching and Tradition, Father quotes Scripture, St. Thomas, St. Robert Bellarmine, and Dante to paint a beautiful picture of what Heaven will be like. REV FR. BLOT, S.J.

THE CATENA CORNER

A SHORT LESSON FROM THE CATENA AUREA
VOLUME III : ST. LUKE 16 VER. 8-13
Pg 551, THE CATENA AUREA, ST. THOMAS AQUINAS
Edited by Blessed John Henry Newman

8. And the lord commended the unjust steward, because he had done wisely: for the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light.

9. And I say unto you, Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations.

10. He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much : and he that is unjust in the least is unjust also in much.

11. If therefore ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will commit to your trust the true riches ?

12. And if ye have not been faithful in that which is another man's, who shall give you that which is your own ?

13. No servant can serve two masters : for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.

AUG. The steward whom his Lord cast out of his stewardship is nevertheless commended because he provided himself against the future. As it follows, And the Lord commended the unjust steward, because he had done wisely; we ought not however to take the whole for our imitation. For we should never act deceitfully against our Lord in order that from the fraud itself we may give alms.

ORIGEN; But because the Gentiles say that wisdom is a virtue, and define it to be the experience of what is good, evil, and indifferent, or the knowledge of what is and what is not to be done, we must consider whether this word signifies many things, or one. For it is said that God by wisdom prepared the heavens. Now it is plain that wisdom is good, because the Lord by wisdom prepared the heavens. It is said also in Genesis, according to the LXX, that the serpent was the wisest animal, wherein he does not make wisdom a virtue, but evil-minded cunning. And it is in this sense that the Lord commended the steward that he had done wisely, that is, cunningly and evilly. And perhaps the word commended was spoken not in the sense of real commendation, but in a lower sense; as when we speak of a man being commended in slight and indifferent matters, and in a certain measure clashings and sharpness of wit are admired, by which the power of the mind is drawn out.

AUG. On the other hand this parable is spoken, that we should understand that if the steward who acted deceitfully, could be praised by his lord, how much more they please God who do their works according to His commandment.

ORIGEN; The children of this world also are not called wiser but more prudent than the children of light, and this not absolutely and simply, but in their generation. For it follows, For the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light, etc.

BEDE; The children of light and the children of this world are spoken of in the same manner as the children of the kingdom, and the children of hell. For whatever works a man does, he is also termed their son.

THEOPHYL; By the children of this world then He means those who mind the good things which are on the earth; by the children of light, those who beholding the divine love, employ themselves with spiritual treasures. But it is found indeed in the management of human affairs, that we prudently order our own things, and busily set ourselves to work, in order that, when we depart we may have a refuge for our life; but when we ought to direct the things of God, we take no forethought for what shall be our lot hereafter.

GREG. In order then that after death they may find something in their own hand, let men before death place their riches in the hands of the poor. Hence it follows, And I say to you, Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness, etc.

AUG. That which the Hebrews Aug. call mammon, in Latin is "riches." As if He said, "Make to yourselves friends of the riches of unrighteousness." Now some misunderstanding this, seize upon the things of others, and so give something to the poor, and think that they are doing what is commanded. That interpretation must be corrected into, Give alms of your righteous labours. For you will not corrupt Christ your Judge. If from the plunder of a poor man, you were to give any thing to the judge that he might decide for you, and that judge should decide for you, such is the force of justice, that you would be ill pleased in yourself. Do not then make to yourself such a God. God is the fountain of Justice, give not your alms then from interest and usury. I speak to the faithful, to whom we dispense the body of Christ. But if you have such money, it is of evil that you have it. Be no longer doers of evil. Zaccheus said, Half my goods I give to the poor. See how he runs who runs to make friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; and not to be held guilty from any quarter, he says, If I have taken any thing from any one, I restore fourfold. According to another interpretation, the mammon of unrighteousness are all the riches of the world, whenever they come. For if you seek the true riches, there are some in which Job when naked abounded, when he had his heart full towards God. The others are called riches from unrighteousness; because they are not true riches, for they are full of poverty, and ever liable to chances. For if they were true riches, they would give you security.

AUG. . Or the riches of unrighteousness are so called, because they are not riches except to the unrighteous, and such as rest in their hopes and the fulness of their happiness. But when these things are possessed by the righteous, they have indeed so much money, but no riches are theirs but heavenly and spiritual.

AMBROSE. Or he spoke of the unrighteous Mammon, because by the various enticements of riches covetousness corrupts our hearts, that we may be willing to obey riches.

BASIL; Or if thou hast, succeeded to a patrimony, thou receivest what has been amassed by the unrighteous; for in a number of predecessors some one must needs be found who has unjustly usurped the property of others. But suppose that thy father has not been guilty of exaction, whence hast thou thy money? If indeed thou answerest, "From myself;" thou art ignorant of God, not having the knowledge of thy Creator; but if, "From God," tell me the reason for which thou receivedst it. Is not the earth and the fulness thereof the Lord's? If then whatever is ours belongs to our common Lord, so will it also belong to our fellow-servant.

Gems from Cardinal Bellarmine's Commentary on the Psalms

The Psalms of the Old Testament constitute the most important Old Testament book, insofar as the Church has made them a part of her prayer, the Divine Office, recited or chanted by clergy and religious, as well as using them in the propers of the Mass, prayers at the foot of the altar, etc. In the early centuries many of the laity knew the Psalms by heart, and during the Middle Ages laymen oftentimes continued to pray the Psalms in the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin, one of the most widely read books during that era. Because the Psalms are filled with prophecies about the Messiah, His Passion and Death, foreshadowed in the sufferings of King David, they nourish the spiritual lives of Catholics, who are called to share in the sufferings of Our Lord as members of His Mystical Body.

Psalm 1:2: "But his will is in the law of the Lord, and on his law he shall meditate day and night."

In this second verse the just man is affirmatively described; and here also we have two sentences, one of which is nearly a repetition of the other. He is truly said to be just or happy, who wishes to do the will of the Lord; because to be just in this life we are not required to be free from all manner of offense, for, St. James says, chap. 3, "We all offend in many things," but it suffices for us to be so disposed towards the law of God, that we desire, above all things, to carry it out; and if we happen to fall into any sin, as undoubtedly we often do, that it is against our will we so fall, that is to say, against the love we entertain towards God and his law, thus making the matter a sin, not a crime, a venial one instead of a deadly one. The same is differently expressed in another psalm: "The law of his God is in his heart." For the will or the heart of a just man is in the law of God, and the law of God is in the will or the heart of the just. . . .

Liber Brevior

In 1954, Desclée and the Gregorian Institute of America published a wonderful book called the "Liber Brevior." This book is essentially the exact same as the "Liber Usualis" (used by priests, monks, sisters and seminarians) except that it had been shortened from around two thousand pages to eight hundred. You could say it is "the layman's Liber." The "Liber Brevior" is perfect for all small choirs that are forming today because it contains almost all the Gregorian Chant they will ever need without the addition of the Divine Office. Also, there are two sets of Graduals, Alleluias, and Tracts—the full-length Gregorian propers AND simpler psalm tone versions (of the same music). Here is what is inside: a complete Kyriale, propers for all Sundays, all Major Feasts and votive Masses, Sunday Compline and Vespers, the music for the Mass of Confirmation and the Requiem Mass (along with the burial service). Additional chants are included in honor of the Blessed Sacrament, the Virgin Mary, and more (i.e.: a few Gregorian hymns for Benediction). Special chants for the liturgical seasons are included as well. The Liber Brevior contains almost every Gregorian Chant piece the normal church choir will need.

All rubrics are in English. The rules and guidelines for singing Gregorian Chant are in the front of the book with clear, concise explanations and pictures of all the information and direction you need to start singing Gregorian Chant (even if you don't know what a note is). Small choirs will be pleased to see that the "Liber Brevior" includes easier psalm tone settings for Graduals, Alleluias and Tracts in an appendix in the back of the book. Only this PCP edition of "Liber Brevior" includes the Mass for Our Lady of Guadalupe, St. Joseph the Worker, and St. Pius X. Black with red edges and ribbons. Pages are fine, high quality "Bible Paper." This is not a cheap imitation but the real thing!

The Autobiography of a Hunted Priest

A Personal Account of the Persecution of Catholics in Elizabethan England.

This is a Jesuit's 1st-hand heroic story of administering the sacraments under disguise during the persecutions: 1588-1606.

To be Catholic was treason and it had the full force of Parliamentary law. To be a priest meant you were stalked by Priest Hunters and capture meant only two things - torture and death. From his clandestine coastal arrival to eventual arrest and imprisonment in the "Tower" along with his daring escape, it is as scary and dangerous as any contemporary spy novel but all true, and more importantly motivated by the love of God. Under the vow of obedience, Fr John Gerard (1564-1637), a Jesuit priest sent to the English missions during the reign of Elizabeth I and her successor, James I, penned this first-hand account of his life. He portrays English life, the Catholic Faith under duress, and the government's tyrannical aim to suppress Catholic English piety that dates back to early Christian times. Sober reading in these times.

MEDITATION ON THE PASSION

AMONG the many subjects proposed by the Church to us for mental prayer, there is none more profitable than the sublime mystery of Calvary. For even where everything is supremely holy—namely, in the actions of Him Who is the way, and the truth, and the life—the Passion is the culmination of sanctity, the highest exercise of virtue, the greatest cause of merit. Hence devout meditation on it produces most abundant fruit in souls. And for this reason, Saints and Doctors of the Church—those who are specially enlightened, those who spoke from experience, those who are our best guides in the spiritual life—with one accord praise and glorify it... (from intro.)

Reprint of 1922 edition

A Member of the almost hidden in the cloister. They have represented that outside the convents of the Institute there are many devout souls to whom the Meditation would be most acceptable. In accordance with their suggestion, and in compliance with their wish, it is now reprinted...
A Member of the Institute of the Blessed Virgin Mary, who, as Mistress of Novices for about thirty years, had gained great experience in the formation of religious as well as in the varied requirements of conventual life, proposed by means of this book to impart to her Sisters the fruit of her own reflections on the Passion, which one so spiritual and enlightened was exceptionally fitted to compile.

As might have been anticipated, the excellence of the work, which she had intended for the use of her Sisters, in course of time became known to several persons, in one or other way connected with the Institute of the Blessed Virgin. And among them, some are of opinion that this treasure should no longer be allowed to remain almost hidden in the cloister. They have represented that outside the convents of the Institute there are many devout souls to whom the Meditation would be most acceptable. In accordance with their suggestion, and in compliance with their wish, it is now reprinted...

That the book may continue to be a help to advancement in the spiritual life, and become an abundant source of blessings to a still wider circle of readers, is the earnest desire of those who have had to do with its reissue.
