Ten Years Later

Christmas Day, 2016 was the tenth anniversary of the death of Brian Pouliot's six-year-old daughter Bernadette, who at that time had been the youngest living child of Brian and his wife Rosalind. It was on that Christmas Eve that Bernadette showed the first symptoms of leukemia. Then seven months later Rosalind herself also passed away from cancer. It was on August 2, the feast of St. Alphonsus, the patron saint of their youngest boy, who had died ten days after birth while held in Rosalind's arms in a hospital room in June of 2003. Brian himself baptized Alphonsus in the hospital, not being able to take him to church for baptism by a priest.

After a year of stress and sorrow from the deaths of Rosalind and Bernadette, Brian suffered two heart attacks on January 4, 2008. After his recovery he resumed normal activities in his barn, which he had converted into PCP's office and warehouse more than a decade earlier. But without Rosalind to homeschool his three youngest children – Monique, Jerome and Colette – he entrusted them to the care of a generous family in Oklahoma City for the 2007-2008 school year. In the meantime his oldest son, Dominique, spent four years in the Marine Corps from 2006 to 2010, and now works in the Boonville area as an accountant, the only other family member still in the area and therefore available to help when needed. His next son, Thomas, was married to his wife Hannah in 2009, and they are living with their two children in Oklahoma City, where he works for the railroad. His next son, Benedict, entered Our Lady of Guadalupe Monastery in Silver City, New Mexico in 2008, taking the name of Brother John the Baptist. Monique married her husband Michael in 2014, and they live along with their baby son in Arkansas, while Jerome and Colette are back in Oklahoma City, Jerome working as a carpenter, and Colette attending college.

On Saturday, November 26, 2016 Brian suffered another tragedy, falling off a ladder and causing multiple fractures in his back and neck. The accident could have been much worse, especially if he had seriously injured his head, but God spared him a second time, just as He had done after the two heart attacks in 2008.

After two decades of working together, Brian and I have become totally dependent upon one another in the work of PCP. If something were to happen to either one of us, we do not know of any way the other could possibly continue alone. With braces on his back and neck, Brian has been recovering and has gradually resumed his normal activities "in the barn." God in His Providence has evidently decided to give us the means to continue this work.

This new year, 2017, is a very significant one in the history of the Church. Although we do not know the future, and therefore we do not pretend to know what specifically this year will bring, it is the centenary of the Apparitions of Our Lady of Fatima. As Catholics throughout the world focus their attention on this anniversary, we know that Our Lady will hear their prayers and be attentive to their manifestations of devotion. Shortly before her death in 2007, Brian's wife Rosalind consecrated herself to Our Lady according to the method of St. Louis de Montfort. The consecration to Our Lady surrenders everything to Her, who guides everything better than we can guide ourselves. In this anniversary year of Our Lady of Fatima, it is She who guides the Church through wars and persecutions, and therefore it is Our Lady of Fatima to whom we also wish to dedicate the work that we do in promoting traditional Catholic literature.

ORDERING INFORMATION

Each book is identified by name, author, year published, number of pages (p) and price. "IL" stands for illustrated and "pb" for paperback where applicable. Condition of each book is identified as follows: (E) Excellent, (VG) Very Good, (G) Good, (F) Fair, (P) Poor. "Bi" and "Pg" refer to binding and pages respectively.

Because we specialize in used and out-of-print books, we frequently have only one or two copies of many of our titles. Refunds are made for books that are no longer available. Books reserved by telephone are held for our customers, and then are mailed as soon as possible after receipt of payment. Books for which payment has not been received after fifteen days are made available for sale to other customers.

Books in Print: In addition to our used books we also offer a selection of new books, primarily reprints of formerly out-of-print works. New books are listed in our section "Books in Print." Discounts on quantity orders (applies only to books in print, not to used and out-of-print books) are available: 10% on orders of three or more copies, 20% for ten or more. Larger discounts are available to bookstores.

Printed Catalog & Web Site: Our printed catalog offers many of our newly acquired titles, while our web site contains much of the cataloged inventory that does not appear in the most recent printed catalog. We invite you to examine each of these inventory lists – the printed catalog because it offers the most recent acquisitions, and the web site because of its more extensive listing of approximately 5,000 titles.

Visit the PCP, Inc. Internet web site at www.pcpbooks.net for our inventory of approximately 5,000 titles.

The harm that comes to souls from the lack of reading holy books makes me shudder... What power spiritual reading has to lead to a change of course, and to make even worldly people enter into the way of perfection.

Comments on the Catholic Bibliographical Index

Dr. Barbara Berfanger, Ed.D.

Former President, St. Mary's College, Kansas

Recently I learned about the release of the Catholic Bibliographical Index by Preserving Christian Publications. My experience in research and in teaching led me to recognize quickly and without doubt that this Index offers an immense, rich resource about works by Catholic authors.

The Index is easy to navigate. Once the user gets started, he can browse by category or search the entire database. The works are listed in a wide range of categories, and the titles are numbered within each category. This feature can keep the searcher on track and save him from getting lost in a long list. The listed titles, most with brief annotations, are clear, well-spaced, and easy to read. Bold-faced headings attract reader's attention to essential publication information.

Anyone searching for references to Catholic authors can find the Index beneficial. It can be helpful to the teacher who wants to compile a reading list to aid students following his or her courses. Secondary and college instructors will find the Index indispensable in guiding students in traditional methods of using an index as an early step in composing a research paper. By being directed to worthwhile works to consider, students can gain skill and will likely discover and appreciate some of the treasures that Catholics have inherited. The Index can yield satisfying rewards to advanced scholars and even to general readers who are pursuing specific searches.

It is a pleasure to give a hearty welcome and endorsement to this gold-mine of information.

What Is the Catholic Bibliographical Index?

<http://www.cbi.pcpbooks.net/>

For more than a quarter of a century Preserving Christian Publications has been electronically cataloging books by Catholic authors obtained from Catholic institutions and private collections, primarily in the northeast of the USA, but also from the Midwest and Far West of the country, as well as from southeastern Canada and Puerto Rico. The resulting bibliography of nearly 25,000 Catholic titles is far from a complete listing of books by Catholic authors. Nevertheless we believe it serves as a useful research tool, and as an introduction to the world's Catholic literature. Though primarily a list of Catholic books published in English, it also contains many Latin titles and books in several other languages.

It is not always easy to determine whether or not certain authors are Catholic, either because they are not sufficiently known to us, or because their publishing houses are not Catholic. But we have always tried to verify the Catholic identity of authors before including their works in the bibliography. In a relatively small number of cases we have included some non-Catholic writers when they wrote on Catholic subjects, but we have added "non-Catholic" after their names to distinguish them from the other authors in the list. In some rare cases we may have mistakenly included some non-Catholic authors without identifying them as such, but we are confident that such errors are very minimal. Therefore this Catholic Bibliographical Index represents the fruit of more than three decades of our work in making Catholic books better known and available to readers throughout the world.

Why Was the Third Secret of Fatima Not Released in 1960?

An Interview with Dr. Antonio Augusto Borelli Machado

Catholicismo, October 2016, volume 66, number 790

Translated from the Portuguese

On July 13, 1917, Our Lady communicated to the three little seers of Fatima a message that they should not reveal to anyone. When asked, shortly after the Apparition, what the Virgin had told them, they answered that it was secret. In this way it was soon learned that there was a secret in the Fatima Message.

In doing so, Our Lady obviously wanted to attract the world's attention to something very important, the content of which would only be made public at the time that Divine Providence deemed appropriate.

All this created an aura of mystery around Fatima and the Secret, which has grown over the years and decades, stressing thereby the importance of its contents.

The first two parts of the Secret were disclosed by Sister Lúcia, by inspiration of Our Lady, in the third Memoir, written by the seer on August 31, 1941. On January 3, 1944, at the request of the Bishop of Leiria and with appropriate permission from the Mother of God, Sister Lúcia wrote the third part of the Secret, which she had delivered to the Bishop through a carrier, in a sealed envelope with a note that it could not be released before 1960. Bishop José Alves Correia da Silva placed the envelope he received from Sister Lúcia inside another envelope, which he in turn sealed and kept in the vaults of the episcopal Curia.

In early 1957, the Sacred Congregation of the Holy Office, now the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, asked that the document be sent to Rome. For this purpose, it was delivered to the Apostolic Nunciature in Lisbon, where the Nuncio, Archbishop Fernando Cento, took it to the Vatican, when it was filed in the Secret Archives of the Holy Office on April 4, 1957.

Requested by John XXIII on August 17, 1959, the Pope received the document from the hands of a Commissary of the Holy Office, opening it a few days later for the first time and reading it with the help of the Portuguese translator of the Secretariat of State. Having decided not to publish it, he returned it to the Holy Office.

That decision, predictably, caused great frustration around the world, giving rise to more reasonable or unreasonable predictions about the contents of the Secret.

The pontiffs that followed, Paul VI, and John Paul II initially, confirmed the decision.

John Paul II, when he went to Fatima on May 13, 2000, announced that the Third Secret was finally going to be revealed with an appropriate commentary of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, which occurred on June 26 of the same year.

On that date, in a formal ceremony presided over by Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger in the Vatican Press Office, the text of the Third Secret was presented to journalists accredited to the Holy See, and then was published around the world.

At the time, the principal Vaticanologists were authorized to formulate questions for clarification.

One of these questions concerned specifically the reason that led the Holy See in 1960 to frustrate the global expectation that the Third Secret would be revealed in that year. Cardinal Ratzinger's response is highly revealing regarding the major reasons that guided the decision of the Holy See.

We could not neglect bringing such important information to the attention of our readers. For this purpose we asked our collaborator Benoît Bemelmans to interview in this regard a respected expert in this area, Antonio Augusto Borelli Machado, and from this came information that explains problems afflicting the Church and the world, in this long period of one hundred years that have elapsed since the apparitions of Fatima.

Although there is disagreement among experts about the fact of whether the text released by the Vatican corresponds to the entire Third Secret or not, we publish the following interview in which the text of the Secret is taken as it was released, without analyzing or entering into polemics with other positions on the matter.

Catholicismo* – In 1960, the expectation that the Third Secret would be released reached its peak. But this revelation did not occur, causing great frustration. Only forty years later, at the end of the millennium, did the Holy See publish it. During the presentation, journalists asked about the reason for the delay. What was the explanation of Cardinal Ratzinger, who presided over the session?

Antonio Borelli Machado – When this part of the Secret was released on June 26, 2000, the Holy See decided to do it with a launching and a display of grand publicity, under the auspices of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith. Journalists accredited to the Vatican were invited. Those present were given a copy of the booklet The Message of Fatima, containing the text of the Secret. The session was presided over by Cardinal Ratzinger, with the participation of Archbishop Bertone, secretary of the same congregation, and the director of the Holy See's Press Office, Navarro Vals. Television stations from all over the world broadcast it live. After the presentations of Cardinal Ratzinger and Archbishop Bertone, the director of the Press Office opened the floor to the journalists who were present, for them to formulate questions. Among these, three were specifically about the reasons that led the Popes to postpone the release of the Third Secret for exactly forty years after the expected date. The best articulated question was that of the writer and Vatican expert Gian Franco Svidercoschi, who was deputy editor of L'Osservatore Romano. His question (taken from the video of the session as provided by the Vatican Press Office) was as follows:

"Your Eminence: Let me talk about the why of the delay, of this prolonging of the prudence of the Church from 1960 until today. You somehow already answered, speaking specifically about the evolution of history. . . . There is also the description given by Archbishop Bertone of the various decisions made by the popes, the historical and political situations having changed. But I ask you: Did not the Church end up paying too high a price for this long silence, this long secret about the Secret? In the final analysis, does not the third part of the secret already contain the second part, while signaling the bishop dressed in white? Is not the third part of the Secret after all simply, say, the corollary of what is already said in the previous parts? This martyrdom [described in the Third Secret] already existed in 1960. Is there not a different way, on the part of the Church, not only in relation to Fatima, to take a position regarding private revelations – which do not affect the deposit of the Faith – and, therefore, could one have avoided causing this whole series of exploitations and scandals that occurred precisely because of this silence that lasted so long? Thank you.”

To this, Cardinal Ratzinger replied without hesitation:

"Certainly the decision of the three Popes not to publish the secret – because also the current Pope [John Paul II], in 1981, did not want to publish it – was a decision that was not dogmatic, but prudential. And one can always argue about the wisdom of a decision, if politically another prudential judgment would have been preferable. Therefore, one should not dogmatize this attitude of the Popes. However, considering retrospectively, I will say: certainly we paid a price for the speculations that occurred in recent decades. But on the other hand, I think it was appropriate to wait for a moment to have a vision in retrospect. In 1960, we were at the threshold of the Council, this great hope of being able to reach a new positive relationship between the world and the Church, and also to open a little the closed doors of Communism. The same was true also in the time of Pope Paul VI: we were still, so to speak, in the assimilation of the Council, with so many problems, that this text [the third Secret] would not have had its proper placement. The same was true soon after the attack [against John Paul II]: to come out immediately at that time with this text would not have produced, it seems to me, a sufficient understanding. I think, without dogmatizing this decision, but personally with sincere conviction, I think it was good, all in all, to wait a little later until the end of the century, to have a more global view, and to better understand the true imperative and true indications of this view."

Catholicismo – Therefore Cardinal Ratzinger recognizes that the disclosure of the Secret in 1960 would upset very important policies that the Holy See had in mind . . . What are those goals that would be harmed by the disclosure of the Third Secret at that time in the twentieth century?

Antonio Borelli Machado – Three political and religious goals of primary importance marked the Church's life in the second half of the twentieth century, mentioned in succession by Cardinal Ratzinger in his response:

1) The ralliement* of the Church with the modern world: "this great hope of being able to reach a new positive relationship between the world and the Church";

*Agreement, adherence.

2) The Vatican's Ostpolitik, that is, the ralliement of the Church with Communism: the hope "to open a little the closed doors of Communism";

3) The implementation of the Council's directives aimed at promoting this double ralliement, which were the cause of "many problems" of "assimilation" of the conciliar innovations by the Catholic world.

Catholicismo – In what does the Third Secret of Fatima collide with these goals?

Antonio Borelli Machado – The Third Secret consists in a vision that shows "an Angel with a flaming sword," which, "flashing, gave out flames that looked as though they would set the world on fire." Now, a world that God wants to punish in this way is a world that is provoking the divine rejection... It was not a world that would authorize "this great hope of being able to reach a new positive relationship between the world and the Church." Therefore, to disclose the Third Secret in 1960 would have been moving in the opposite direction of the ralliement of the Church with the modern world.

I use here the word ralliement in reference to the famous policy of Leo XIII towards secular states installed in the world in the wake of the French Revolution. In particular, the secularist republic in power in France. As you know, that pontiff came to regret, in his old age, the failure of his hopes.*

*Concerning the ralliement of Leo XIII, see the book by PLINIO CORRÊA DE OLIVEIRA, Nobreza e elites tradicionais análogas nas alocuções de Pio XII ao Patriciado e à Nobreza romana [Nobility and Analogous Traditional Elites in the Allocutions of Pius XII], Appendix III, 3. Leão XIII intervém, pp. 235-239, Livraria Civilização-Editora, Porto, 1993. English edition: Spring Grove, Pennsylvania: The American Society for the Defense of Tradition, Family & Property, 1993. See also ROBERTO DE MATTEI, Il ralliement di Leone XIII – Il fallimento di un progetto pastorale, Le Lettere, Firenze, 2014, 366 pp.

In the Second Vatican Council, influential Council Fathers were animated by similar optimism to promote a ralliement of the Church with the modern world – in perfect harmony with Leo XIII. If they had devoted due attention to the two parts of the Secret of Fatima by then already revealed, they might perhaps have moderated their optimism: it suffices to pay attention to the phrase "various nations will be annihilated," contained in the second part of the Secret. The revelation of the third part in 1960, if widely disseminated, with appropriate commentaries – one thinks of the "great city half in ruins". . . – it could open their eyes; or at least make them understand that Catholic public opinion would not comprehend such a ralliement, something which might possibly deter them from taking this step.

As churchmen were determined to achieve, at any cost, this accommodation to the world, they had to opt for the non-disclosure of the Third Secret and pay the price of estrangement that this would produce among Catholics, as indeed occurred.

Catholicismo – Such a great punishment hanging over the world indicates that the conduct of human society is in contradiction with the principles that God wanted to establish within it. Is it possible to highlight the point in which this contradiction essentially lies?

Antonio Borelli Machado – For the public of our day to understand how far the world is from the right order of things it is appropriate to quote a famous text of Leo XIII: "There was a time when the philosophy of the Gospel governed States. During that age, the influence of Christian wisdom and its divine power penetrated the laws, the institutions, the customs of peoples, all categories and all relations of civil society. Then the religion instituted by Jesus Christ, solidly established in the degree of dignity that is due to her, was everywhere flourishing, thanks to the favor of princes and to the legitimate protection of magistrates. Then the priesthood and the empire were linked together by a happy concord and by the friendly exchange of good offices. Organized in this way, civil society produced fruits superior to all expectations, fruits the memory of which remains and will remain, enshrined as it is in numerous documents which no artifice of its opponents will be able to corrupt or obscure" (Encyclical Immortale Dei, of November 1, 1885, n° 28).

However, the governments of our day, consistent with the secularism that they profess, feel themselves free from the obligation of adjusting the norms of individual and social behavior to the Ten Commandments of the Law of God, and of giving to the Church "the degree of dignity that is due to her." As a result, they implant throughout the world every kind of transgression against the natural and divine Laws, such as divorce, abortion, homosexual union, etc.

Thus, the secularism of the State, which proclaims itself neutral in matters of Religion and Morals, reveals itself as the obstinate enemy of the Catholic Church and of Christian Morality. And it is a constant of history: he who declares himself neutral between truth and error, in reality positions himself in favor of all the errors against the one truth. Such is the position of secularism in the face of the true Church.

Secularism is not neutral in matters of religion, but militantly atheistic. And this is indicated by Leo XIII, in the same encyclical Immortale Dei: "With regard to religion, to think that it is indifferent to have disparate and contrary forms simply amounts to not wanting or choosing or following any of them. It is atheism minus the name" (paragraph 37).

Secularism is, therefore, the "no religion" of the modern world, that is, atheism; doctrinal and practical atheism, which pervades all society. Over this hovers the Message of Fatima, which warns: either society converts and does penance, or there will come a Chastisement of cosmic proportions.

How does one nourish "this great hope of being able to reach a new positive relationship between the world and the Church"? – For those people who were enthused by such a hope, it was absolutely not suitable that the Third secret would be revealed in 1960 . . .

Catholicismo – When did there arise in the Church that desire to establish a "positive relationship" with the world?

Antonio Borelli Machado – The word world appears in the Gospels sometimes with a generic meaning, and at other times to designate those who did not accept the preaching of Our Lord Jesus Christ and opposed Him. In this second sense it appears, for example, in the Gospel of St. John, in verses 18 and 19 of chapter 15: "If the world hates you, know that it has hated Me before you" (Jn 15:18). And then immediately: "But because you are not of the world . . . therefore the world hates you" (Jn 15:19).

This same fate applies to all the disciples of Christ, from that time until the present day. Hence the fact that the more lukewarm portion of the Catholic camp tries to cool the hatred of the world by entering into compromise with it. It is in the fallen nature of man and is therefore manifested in all periods of Church history. It suffices to open its compendiums in order to observe this fact.

With this there is a characteristic that is easy to observe: those who give in to this temptation seek to remain halfway between truth and error.

Let us go directly to modern times: Erasmus of Rotterdam (1466-1536), the celebrated humanist, promoted "a spirit of reaction against scholasticism, of freedom of thought and the simplification of Christianity,"* which led to an attempt to get closer to Luther – which failed because of the bellicose nature of the latter. Thus, from the Protestant Pseudo-Reformation and the Renaissance, a current of thinking among Catholics, largely inspired by Erasmus, tried to enter into collaboration with the errors of their time.

*GUILLERMO FRAILLE, Historia de la filosofía, BAC, Madrid 1991, 3rd ed., Volume III, p. 74.

The idea of a rejoining of the Church with the world emerging from the French Revolution was advocated by liberal Catholics of the nineteenth century, beginning with Félicité de Lamennais, soon afterwards condemned by Gregory XVI (1831-1846).

Pius IX (1846-1878) summarized the errors of Catholic liberalism in the Syllabus praecipuorum nostrae aetatis errorum (Syllabus of the principal errors of our time) of December 8, 1864, which he synthesizes in proposition 80: "LXXX. The Roman Pontiff can and should reconcile and adapt himself to progress, liberalism and modern civilization."

It should be noted at the outset that the Church's opposition was not against progress itself, but against what this brought of revolutionary in its wake in order to demolish what the society of the time, already decaying, kept of good and in conformity with the principles of natural and Christian order.

The firm position of Pius IX, however, was in contrast with that of the Pontiff who succeeded him, Leo XIII (1878-1903), who promoted in France the policy of ralliement with the republic born from the French Revolution, which was alluded to above (cf. 2nd Question). This Pontiff hoped that such a policy, conducted with firm determination throughout his pontificate, would be continued by successive Popes. That certainly would have happened if his Secretary of State, Cardinal Mariano Rampolla del Tindaro, had been elected Pope, as was expected. The unforeseen election of Cardinal Giuseppe Sarto, with the name of Pius X (1903-1914), rendered unfulfilled the immediate continuation of this policy.

It resurfaces already in a manner well-defined, in the mid 1930s, in the Pontificate of Pius XI (1922-1939), on the wings of optimism and openness to the world advocated within the development of Catholic Action.* In the intellectual field, an analogous position was fed by authors who were much appreciated in these same circles of Catholic Action, especially Jacques Maritain with his book Humanisme intégral (1936).

*Cf. Plinio, Em defesa da Ação Católica, Editora Ave Maria, São Paulo, 1943. English edition: In Defense of Catholic Action, Spring Grove, Pennsylvania: The American TFP, 2003.

Since then, the attitude of ralliement with the modern world has continued to clearly manifest itself in liberal Catholic circles, but was only publicly adopted, almost a half century later, by Pope John XXIII (1958-1963). In the opening speech of the Second Vatican Council (October 11, 1962), referring to those who "in the present conditions of human society, are only able to see ruins and calamities," the Pope declares, "But to Us it seems we must disagree entirely with those prophets of doom, who always announce unfortunate events, as if the end of the world were imminent" (subtitle Opportunitas celebrandi Concilii).

With the promulgation of the Pastoral Constitution Gaudium et Spes, by Paul VI (1962-1978), at the end of the Council (1965), the policy of ralliement with the modern world was finally enacted and extended to the whole globe. The pastoral line advocated by Gaudium et Spes does not constitute a novelty conceived by the Council Fathers of Vatican II, but the effective implementation of a "pastoral" as advocated by Lamennais in 1830!

Thus, instead of warning Catholics of the Chastisement announced by Our Lady of Fatima, the Second Vatican Council proposed establishing good relations between the Church and the world, sponsoring the advent of an era of joy and hope for humanity in our day.

Such was a subliminal effect produced simply by the title given to the conciliar document – Gaudium et Spes – which expressed, regardless of its complex content, new and benevolent dispositions that the Council assumed before the world of our days.

The Message of Fatima, however, went in a diametrically opposed direction!

Catholicismo – This notion of the coming great Chastisement is also not very much present in commentaries on the Third Secret made by scholars and preachers . . .

Antonio Borelli Machado – Nevertheless, it is present in the principal commentator, which Cardinal Ratzinger certainly was . . .

Indeed, in the interpretation of the Third Secret made by him, and which completes the booklet The Message of Fatima, it is said: "The key word in this part of the 'secret' is the threefold cry: 'Penance, Penance, Penance!' It returns us to the thought of the beginning of the Gospel: Paenitemini et credite evangelio' (Mk 1:15). To understand the signs of the times means to accept the urgency of penance, conversion, faith. This is the right answer to a historical period characterized by great dangers, which will be outlined in the successive images . . . The angel with the flaming sword on the left of the Mother of God recalls similar images of the Apocalypse: it represents the threat of judgment which looms over the world. The possibility that this might be reduced to ashes in a sea of fire, today no longer appears in any way as pure fantasy: man himself prepared, with his inventions, the sword of fire" (The Message of Fatima, p. 24, Vatican English online version).

The conclusion is clear: the world of today – the modern world – is set before the following alternatives:

a) either it converts, and such a conversion involves abandoning the false principles on which it is made, and thus ceases to be secular, atheist ..., "modern";

b) or it does not convert, and will be reduced to ashes by fire.

In the second hypothesis, on its ruins there will rise a new civilization, which St. Louis de Montfort named the Reign of Mary (Treatise on True Devotion, n° 217) – in perfect harmony with the Message of Fatima: "Finally, my Immaculate Heart will triumph" (Second Secret).

Catholicismo – Could this be said to be the central point of the Message of Fatima?

Antonio Borelli Machado – Exactly. The imminence of a great Punishment.

Many preachers imagine that by announcing it they would scare their listeners, and therefore they do not do it. Nevertheless the mission of the prophets has often been to call the people to penance, announcing punishments.

If they are listened to, the punishment will be avoided. If they are not heard, the punishment will be let loose.

It is a matter of fidelity to Our Lady to proclaim the Message of Fatima in its entirety.

In fact, there are a considerable number of souls who, by themselves, have formed the notion of the disorder of the modern world, and that without an extraordinary intervention of Providence, this world has no remedy. Such souls cultivate the hope of this intervention in the secret of their hearts, and they would feel confirmed by hearing the same diagnosis from the lips of the pastors of the Church.

Therefore, it is not to be feared that such souls would be frightened by the prophecy of Punishment; on the contrary, they will exult with the harbinger of the victory of good over evil. As the prophet Simeon was comforted to see the Messiah in the arms of the Blessed Virgin: "Now thou dost dismiss thy servant, O Lord, according to thy word, in peace; because my eyes have seen thy salvation" (Lk 2: 29-30).

The fact is that, without the mention of the Punishment, the Message of Fatima is emptied of its specific character for the present day. One does not understand how the core point of this Message is omitted.

Preachers should not therefore fear that their hearers might be frightened. For some it will be the confirmation of what they thought, and a consolation! For those who are startled, it will serve as a warning, perhaps an occasion to open their souls to the grace of Fatima.

Nor is it enough to say – as many do – that the Message of Fatima, by the fact that one preaches prayer and penance, is in perfect conformity with the Gospel of Our Lord Jesus Christ. It is true, and it is good that they say it. But it is also necessary to emphasize the enormity of the Punishment that hangs over the world. Only then will a large number of souls be moved to serious penance. And only then can they constitute the living stones of the Reign of Mary that will come!

Catholicismo – With reference to Communism, the use of word ralliement may seem excessive. Could one not say that the Vatican Ostpolitik aimed only at alleviating the persecution unleashed by Communist governments? Cardinal Ratzinger expressly refers to "opening a little the closed doors of Communism."

Antonio Borelli Machado – This involves a process. At first, the Ostpolitik seems only a relaxation, a cessation of hostilities. Then, this détente becomes a normal interaction. Finally, it ends in cooperation for a common purpose. But this purpose is not chosen in a common agreement: it is that which benefits the Communist partner. Thus, it produces in the Catholic partner a gradual abandonment of inalienable principles, which fall into oblivion, being replaced in practice by the principles and goals of the enemy. It is the result of the process of unperceived ideological transshipment, as it was called by Plinio Corrêa de Oliveira.*

*Cf. Baldeação ideológica inadvertida e diálogo, Editora Vera Cruz, São Paulo, 1974, 5ª ed., 118 pp. Online English translation: Unperceived Ideological Transshipment and Dialogue, <http://www.tfp.org/tfp-home/books/unperceived-ideological-transshipment-and-dialogue.html>. The secretary-general of the Spanish Communist Party, Santiago Carrillo (1915-2012), asked by some "comrades" if cooperation with Catholics would not change the ideological content of the party, answered with a question: "Since we started this policy, how many comrades do you know who have become believers? On the other hand, how many Catholics became Communists?"* It is a question that does not require an answer . . .

* SANTIAGO CARRILLO, Mañana España, Colección Ebro, Paris, 1975, p. 232.

This détente was inaugurated by Maurice Thorez (1900-1964), in a famous speech on Radio Paris on April, 17 1936, which proposed to Catholics, on behalf of the French Communist Party, the politique de la main tendue (politics of the outstretched hand).*

* Cf. MAURICE THOREZ, Oeuvres, Éditions Sociales, Paris, 1954, volume XI, p. 203.

The proposal found, on the part of Pope Pius XI, a lively rejection expressed in the encyclical Divini Redemptoris (On Atheistic Communism), on March 19, 1937. This document was succeeded by another – the encyclical Mit brennender Sorge of March 15, 1937 – which condemned the persecutions suffered by the Church at the hands of the German Reich, under the Nazi regime. The near simultaneity of the two documents – only four days apart – makes us think that the intention was to avoid the allegation that with the condemnation of one system, the other was not being condemned. In fact, Nazism and Communism were two sides of the same socialist coin, against which the Pope simultaneously warned the Catholic rank and file.

Nevertheless, the proposal of Thorez made its way among Catholic militants. A clear manifestation of this was the appearance, much later, of a theological current of a Marxist nature, against which we were warned in the Instruction on Certain Aspects of "Theology of Liberation," of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, of August 6, 1984, signed by Cardinal Ratzinger.

On the diplomatic level, it is appropriate to note another important manifestation of ralliement: the so-called Vatican Ostpolitik.

Cardinal Agostino Casaroli, Secretary of State of the Holy See during the pontificate of Paul VI and promoter of this policy, declared in 1974, when he was in Cuba, that Catholics of that country considered themselves happy there under the current regime. It was a clear way to indicate that such a policy was aimed at the "fall of the ideological barriers" between the Church and Communism.*

*Cf. PLINIO CORRÊA DE OLIVEIRA, A política de distensão do Vaticano com os governos comunistas — Para a TFP: omitir-se? ou resistir?, Catolicismo, n° 280, April 1974. English translation: The Vatican Policy of Détente with Communist Governments – Should the TFPs Stand Down? Or Should They Resist? <http://www.tfp.org/tfp-home/statements/the-vatican-policy-of-detente-towards-the-communist-governments.html>

This détente of Catholics in the face of Communism developed on two fronts. The properly diplomatic front – indicated by the word

Ostpolitik – and the pastoral front, expressed in the Second Vatican Council by the Pastoral Constitution on the Church in the Modern World (in Latin, Constitutio Pastoralis de Ecclesia in mundo hujus temporis), better known by its opening words Gaudium et Spes, which we have already mentioned (cf. 5th question). The words hujus temporis (literally of this time) mean the modern world, and in this way it was well understood by English translators.

Such openness of the Church to Communism did not pass unnoticed by the leaders of the party. Thus, Roger Garaudy (1913-2012), a prominent member of the French Communist Party (who was later excluded for his independent positions, having adhered to Islam, after passing through Protestantism and Catholicism), wrote in the book: *Intégrismes**: “The great novelty of Vatican II – expressed in the text Gaudium et Spes, of 1966 [sic! read: 1965] – was the opening to the world, the renunciation of the claim to govern it, in order, on the contrary, to serve it, in the light of evangelical humility, recognizing ‘the autonomy of earthly realities’... Nowhere else in the world, except in Latin America, had this message on the Church's liberating mission had greater echo. Starting from a historical situation of misery and oppression, and the concrete practices of ‘ecclesial base communities,’ there was born of this double experience, starting from 1970, the theologies of liberation. They were based on the preferential evangelical option for the most deprived.”

* Pierre Belfond, Paris, 1990, pp.50-51.

Today it is known that John XXIII urgently desired that in this Great Assembly there would be present representatives of the Moscow Patriarchate. The Russian Soviet government agreed to give permission for the Russian Orthodox Church to send these representatives, on the condition that the Council refrain from any condemnation of Communism. The Pope accepted this condition.*

*Cf. ROBERTO DE MATTEI, Il Concilio Vaticano II — Una storia mai scritta, Lindau, Torino, 2010, pp. 172-180, 360-364, 422-426, 492-504, 512-514, 563-567, 580-588.

This fact explains that the petition of 213 Council Fathers in the opposite direction – that is, that the Council condemn the Marxist errors, socialism and communism* – had not been taken into account either by John XXIII or by Paul VI.

*Cf. Catholicismo, no. 157, January 1964, p. 5.

Gaudium et Spes limited itself to an ultra-comprehensive analysis of various forms of atheism (GS paragraphs 19, 20 and 21), an analysis that concludes in a statement that “credentes et non credentes” “should contribute to the just construction of this world in which they live in common,” “which certainly cannot be done without a sincere and prudent dialogue” (GS n° 21).

But can there can be “a sincere and prudent dialogue” with atheistic leaders of a secular State showing hostility against the Church, as Gaudium et Spes describes in the very next sentence?: The Church “deploras therefore the discrimination between believers and nonbelievers, which some rulers, not recognizing the fundamental rights of the human person, introduce unjustly” (GS n° 21).

How can one imagine, therefore, that these rulers give themselves to collaborating toward a “just building of this world in which they live in common”? – It was a frustrated hope, as the fifty years since then have proven.

Therefore, it is not excessive to use the word ralliement to indicate that the Vatican Ostpolitik effectively sought a collaboration of Communist atheists for a common work.

The Third Secret of Fatima presents us with an immense array of lay Catholics from all walks of life, preceded by Pope, bishops and priests, religious, ascending a steep mountain, on top of which they are received with bullets and arrows by a group of soldiers. This scene evokes the firing squads of Communist regimes . . .

Such a reminder would have been inopportune in times of ralliement with Communism!

Thus, if revealed in 1960 and with opportune commentary, the Third Secret would raise difficulties for such a policy. Its custodians considered it safer not to disclose it.

Catholicismo – What consequences did this openness to the modern world bring as a consequence to the life of the Church?

Antonio Borelli Machado – Very serious consequences, for it eliminated the barriers that protected the faithful from the contamination of the errors of the modern world. Indeed, the fall of the ideological barriers between the Church and the world has resulted precisely in leading the faithful to abdicate inalienable principles of Catholic doctrine – which, in all conscience, they could not do – and to assume to a large degree the way of thinking and acting of the world, exacerbating all the problems that the Church's pastoral life must face in our days.

This result, in fact, did not escape the sagacious glance of Cardinal Ratzinger. Elected Pope in the conclave of 2005, in an important speech to the Roman Curia on the occasion of the presentation of Christmas wishes, on December 22 of that year, he warned: “The issue becomes clearer if, instead of the generic term ‘world today,’ we choose another more precise one: the Council had to determine in a new way the relationship between the Church and the modern age.... Whoever was expecting that with this fundamental ‘yes’ to the modern age, all the tensions would dissolve and ‘openness to the world’ thus realized would transform everything into pure harmony, such a person underestimated the inner tensions and even the contradictions of the modern age itself: one underestimated the dangerous fragility of human nature which, in all periods of history and in every historical setting, is a threat to the path of man.... Also in our time the Church remains a ‘sign of contradiction’ (Lk 2:34).... It could not be the intention of the Council to abolish this contradiction of the Gospel in the face of dangers and human errors.”

Now, had the Third Secret been understood and had it oriented the options of the hierarchy of the Church, it would have prevented the faithful from being contaminated with the errors of the secularism of the modern States.

Catholicismo – How did they finally arrive at disclosing the Third Secret?

Antonio Borelli Machado – Pope John Paul II was the victim of a sacrilegious attack by bullet on May 13, 1981, on the day that marked the first appearance of Our Lady at Fatima. This coincidence of course led the Catholic world to wonder if there was any link between the attack and the prophecies of Fatima. It is understandable that the Pontiff himself would give special attention to the Third Secret. Thus, even in the Policlinico Gemelli, in which he was between life and death, he asked as soon as he could to see the Secret. The association between the attack that he had suffered and the martyrdom of a Pope described in it was impressive, although not absolute, since in the Secret the Pope dies and he had survived. This did not prevent him from believing that there had been a miraculous intervention of the Virgin, diverting from vital organs the trajectory of the projectile, which was later handed over to those responsible for the Shrine of Fatima, and encased in the crown of the Statue venerated there.

The theme of Fatima was no stranger to the Pontiff, because he was one of the 510 signers of the petition to Paul VI to take advantage of the presence of bishops from around the world in Rome, on the occasion of the Council, to make the consecration of Russia and the world to the Immaculate Heart of Mary. This consecration was requested by Our Lady as a pledge of the conversion of that Communist country and the suspension of the punishments hanging over the modern world.

Having recovered from the effects of the attack, John Paul II repeatedly made the consecration of the world to the Immaculate Heart of Mary. The one closest to the conditions required by Our Lady was that of March 25, 1984, in which, however, constrained by the engagements of the Vatican Ostpolitik, he did not utter the name of Russia, though – according to declarations – he would have mentally included it in the consecration.

Finally there remained the question of the disclosure of the Secret. The saying has it that "Rome is in no hurry." However, as shown by Svidercoschi in his question to Cardinal Ratzinger, quoted at the beginning, sensationalist speculations about its content left the faithful anxious and the highest administration of the Church embarrassed.

So it was that in December 1999 – eighteen years after the assassination attempt – John Paul II decided to authorize its publication, putting the Bishop of Leiria-Fatima in charge of announcing that the Secret would finally be revealed when the Pope would go to Fatima on May 13, 2000.

On this date, there was a small delay. The Prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, pondered with the Pope about the need to clarify the faithful on the scope of private revelations, even those of Fatima, however much approved they be. Indeed, they do not require the acceptance of the faithful as a dogma of faith.

Incidentally, the fact that the Secret was not released in 1960 was the result of a prudential decision and not a dogmatic one, as noted by the same Cardinal Ratzinger: "Certainly the decision of the three Popes not to publish the Secret . . . was not a dogmatic, but a prudential decision. And one can always argue about the wisdom of a decision, if politically another prudential act would have been preferable. Therefore, one should not dogmatize this attitude of the Popes."

And not being a dogmatic act it is not guaranteed by the charism of infallibility: "One can always argue about the wisdom of a decision."

Finally, the Third Secret was revealed in 2000. And there occurred what Cardinal Ratzinger predicted early in the beginning of his Theological Commentary: "A careful reading of the text of the so-called third 'secret' of Fatima, published here in its entirety long after the fact and by decision of the Holy Father, will probably prove disappointing or surprising after all the speculation it has stirred. No great mystery is revealed; nor is the future unveiled. We see the Church of the martyrs of the century which has just passed represented in a scene described in a language which is symbolic and not easy to decipher. Is this what the Mother of the Lord wished to communicate to Christendom and to humanity at a time of great difficulty and distress?" (A Mensagem de Fátima, Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, Libreria Editrice Vaticana, Città del Vaticano, 2000, p. 31).

Preserving all the reverence merited by the author of that commentary, besides being elevated to the pontifical throne in the conclave of 2005, one notes that the Third Secret reveals two important points of "the future unveiled," today very present to the world's attention: the prophetic announcement of the martyrs of the 21st century, and the prospect of a universal scale of destruction. Moreover, as we have seen, it is Cardinal Ratzinger himself who points out, in his Theological Commentary, these two points: martyrdom and destruction.

Catholicismo – What will be the intensity of the Chastisement announced in Fatima: does it signify a destruction of the world to its foundations?

Antonio Borelli Machado – It is very suggestive that, in the Third Secret, "a great city half in ruins" is described. What is "half in ruins" is not totally destroyed. So, of what exists today, something will remain standing. One might think that the destruction will be selective . . .

In the passage of the encyclical Immortale Dei, cited above, Leo XIII observed that, in times past – and it is obvious that he is referring to the Middle Ages – "civil society produced fruits superior to all expectations, fruits the memory of which remains and will remain, enshrined as it is in numerous documents which no artifice of its opponents will be able to corrupt or obscure."

If such "documents," "no artifice of its opponents will be able to corrupt or obscure," a fortiori one must conclude that God will preserve them, when the Chastisement is let loose.

What documents are these?

The memory of the past remains not only in historical documents, but also at the heart of laws and institutions consolidated over the centuries; and, even more visibly, in the monuments that time and men have not destroyed. An example to cause a chill and fear was the intention of the revolutionaries of 1789 to demolish Notre Dame of Paris – this jewel of medieval Christianity. It came to the point of being put up for sale and even a buyer emerged. With the disruption of the Revolution, the buyer failed to pay and the negotiation fell apart.

Now, with the approaching centenary of Fatima, the revolutionaries of today try to deliver the final assault against Christian civilization: they attack with blind hatred the sacred principles of the family that still remain standing, and they strive, among other evil designs, to upset the very biological nature of man, advocating what they call Gender Ideology. According to this, one is not born man or woman, but each one becomes male or female according to his or her personal inclinations. An unprecedented design!

It is comforting to see that many of our contemporaries, who once passively watched the revolutionary advances, today begin to react and create unexpected obstacles to that final boldness of the Revolution.*

*For an insightful analysis of the revolutionary process that came to erode Christian Civilization from the late Middle Ages until today, see Revolution and Counter-Revolution, PLINIO CORRÊA DE OLIVEIRA, published in Portuguese (original language), with several editions in other languages: German, Belorussian, Spanish, Estonian, French, Hungarian, English, Italian, Japanese, Lithuanian, Polish, Romanian, Russian and Ukrainian.

Given the above, one can predict that the revolutionary process will not reach the total destruction which it longs for – of the principles, institutions and monuments of Christian civilization – but will be thrown into shock against the resistance of a small but growing number of faithful souls.

It is not without deep emotion that one sees emerge, in the final scene of the Third Secret, the unexpected ranks of those were far from God, and who, coming again to approach Him, are anointed with the blood of martyrs, collected right before by two Angels, in crystal watering cans, under the arms of the Cross.

To these unknown beneficiaries of the blood of martyrs, according to the principle enunciated by Tertullian, it will be fitting to join with love the remains of Christendom – the documents to which Pope Leo XIII made reference – and rebuild on them the Christian Civilization of the future, bringing it to its maximum splendor, not reached during the Middle Ages.

For this purpose, one should remove all the debris of the secular, egalitarian and atheistic State, which will have remained on the face of the earth, and rebuild over them a "Christian, austere and hierarchical civilization, fundamentally sacral, anti-egalitarian, and anti-liberal," as taught by Prof. Plinio Corrêa de Oliveira in Revolution and Counter-Revolution.*

*Part II, ch. II.

All of this with a profoundly Marian tone, as St. Louis de Montfort foresaw in the Treatise on True Devotion (No. 217):

– "When will the day come when souls will breathe Mary, as the body breathes air?"

We do not know when this will occur. One thing, however, is certain: this in truth will take place because Our Lady promised at the end of the Second Secret: "Finally, my Immaculate Heart will triumph!"

From the Introduction by the Editor, Father Reginald Walsh, O.P.

AMONG the many subjects proposed by the Church to us for mental prayer, there is none more profitable than the sublime mystery of Calvary. For even where everything is supremely holy—namely, in the actions of Him Who is the way, and the truth, and the life—the Passion is the culmination of sanctity, the highest exercise of virtue, the greatest cause of merit. Hence devout meditation on it produces most abundant fruit in souls. And for this reason, Saints and Doctors of the Church—those who are specially enlightened, those who spoke from experience, those who are our best guides in the spiritual life—with one accord praise and glorify it...

A Member of the Institute of the Blessed Virgin Mary, who, as Mistress of Novices for about thirty years, had gained great experience in the formation of religious as well as in the varied requirements of conventual life, proposed by means of this book to impart to her Sisters the fruit of her own reflections on the Passion, which one so spiritual and enlightened was exceptionally fitted to compile.

AS might have been anticipated, the excellence of the work, which she had intended for the use of her Sisters, in course of time became known to several persons, in one or other way connected with the Institute of the Blessed Virgin. And among them, some are of opinion that this treasure should no longer be allowed to remain almost hidden in the cloister. They have represented that outside the convents of the Institute there are many devout souls to whom the Meditation would be most acceptable. In accordance with their suggestion, and in compliance with their wish, it is now reprinted...

THAT the book may continue to be a help to advancement in the spiritual life, and become an abundant source of blessings to a still wider circle of readers, is the earnest desire of those who have had to do with its reissue.
