The Church and Health Care An Appeal to the Silent Priests and Bishops

The political debate taking place in the United States regarding health care, as Juan Donoso Cortés wrote regarding all political questions, is ultimately a theological or religious question. A century ago American Catholic author James J. Walsh, in his book The Thirteenth: Greatest of Centuries, devoted a chapter to the theme of “City Hospitals – Organized Charity.” In it he showed how the Church in the Middle Ages created organized medical care, in the form the modern world now knows and from which it continues to benefit. Even in the United States, a non-Catholic country, Catholic hospitals constitute a major sector of the nation’s health care system. This factor has made Catholics in the United States a central participant in the debate regarding how health care should be provided.

However, there has been much confusion in the debate about the respective roles of the Church and private charity on one hand, and the role of government, on the other hand, in providing health care to a nation’s citizens. In the Catholic Middle Ages government played a relatively minor role. But today, the turning of the entire management of health care over to government, as various modern governments have been demanding, and with Catholic leaders at times acquiescing, is contrary to the centuries-old practice of the Church, and led recently to the death of the baby Charlie Gard in England – when socialized medicine assumed authority over the life and death of a helpless infant, causing untold grief to his parents, as socialism denied them their parental rights over their child.

In 1976, Brazilian Catholic leader Plinio Corrêa de Oliveira published a book about the escalation of the Communist threat against the Church and Christian Civilization, a theme that some might think is a problem of the past, two and a half decades after the fall of the Soviet Union. But the British case of government control over the life of an infant demonstrates the continuing threat of socialism, and the spreading of the errors of Russia foretold by Our Lady at Fatima. Plinio Corrêa de Oliveira’s 1976 book added a subtitle of central significance in the present debate: An Appeal to the Silent Bishops. The author recognized that there were divisions within the hierarchy of the Church regarding the contemporary threat, and he asked those bishops who might otherwise remain silent to lead the faithful in a time of crisis. His analysis revolved around the appearance and influence of the national episcopal conferences during the twentieth century, and the danger that individual bishops would forego the exercise of their own authority out of a fear of opposing a majority opinion, an opinion competing with their own, but one that does not replace the authority of individual bishops to speak out against the moral evils of our time.

Turning our attention from Brazil to the United States, we find a clear example in the matter of health care. In 1919 the American bishops, through what was then called the National Catholic War Council, issued a document titled “Program of Social Reconstruction” on February 12 of that year, followed by a joint Pastoral Letter on September 26. The first of the two documents addressed the question of the role of insurance in caring for the nation’s citizens. That document of nearly a century ago has been misunderstood today, even among bishops themselves within the national conference of bishops, as an episcopal endorsement of national health care managed by the government. But the bishops in 1919 in fact took an entirely different position, indicating that insurance was not primarily the role of government, but rather that of businesses in providing for their employees. This episcopal policy of a century ago calls to mind the guild system of the Middle Ages, in which the individual guilds provided insurance for their members. As James Walsh's book clearly indicated, insurance and health care were "organized charity" in a most profound way – a work of charity inspired by the Church and private initiatives, whereby medical care was managed efficiently through activities begun and guided by the Church, and not controlled by a centralized national State driven by the false principles of socialism.

In order to provide perspective on the role of the Church and individual Catholics in the debate on health care, we are posting on our web site – for reading online or for downloading* – Chapter XXI of Dr. James Walsh's book, in order to demonstrate how it came about that the Church, and not the central government, was the ultimate inspirer of proper health care for a nation's citizens. In doing so we appeal to the priests, and ultimately to the bishops, to lead the faithful by providing a proper understanding of our Catholic history, and therefore of the tradition of the Church. Currently the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops has assumed a position that is not consistent with the position of the American bishops in 1919, but contrary to it. Rather than favoring a centralized national health care system, such as the British system that resulted in the recent death of the infant Charlie Gard, the American bishops in 1919 held that "any contribution to the insurance fund from the general revenues of the state should be only slight and temporary," and that "all forms of state insurance should be regarded as merely a lesser evil, and should be so organized and administered as to hasten the coming of the normal condition." In other words, the bishops in 1919 saw the "normal condition" as the work of charity and justice on the part of the private sector, not a centralized program of socialized medicine. History teaches us that medical care was a work of the Church before being a work of government, and that if Catholics were to surrender their role of leadership to a centralized government program, this would favor the usurping by the State of the role of the Church in society. For these reasons we are making available the historical analysis of James Walsh, written a century ago, an analysis of the Church's historical role in establishing organized health care, the Catholic alternative to the modern systems of socialized medicine.

The Kevin Symonds–Christopher Ferrara Debate on the Third Secret

On October 13, 2017 Angelus Press hosted a debate at their annual Conference in Kansas City. It was devoted to the question of whether there is more to the Third Secret of Fatima than the text published by the Vatican. Kevin J. Symonds argued that there is not another missing text, and Christopher Ferrara defended the theory that there is such a document.

In our 62-page booklet Fatima and the Third Secret, we gave a brief summary of the history of this controversy, which began days after the publication of the Secret on June 26, 2000. In that booklet we described how the theory of a missing document picked up momentum when Italian journalist Antonio Socci published a book defending the existence of this “Fourth Secret” – and then, in October of 2007, Italian Church historian Roberto de Mattei published in his journal Lepanto an essay responding to Antonio Socci, an article written by Brazilian Fatima scholar Antonio Borelli Machado, “Some Friendly Reflections for the Clarification of a Debate” (www.pcpbooks.net [home page]).

More than two years later Christopher Ferrara wrote a lengthy reply to Antonio Borelli Machado that appeared on the web site of the Fatima Center of the late Father Nicholas Gruner. While trying to defend the existence of a “fourth secret,” Mr. Ferrara characterized Antonio Borelli Machado’s interpretation of the Third Secret as a mere repetition of the Second Secret. However, it was Sister Lúcia herself who had pointed to this relationship between the second and third parts of the Secret of Fatima, in her letter of May 12, 1982 to Pope John Paul II. In that letter Sister Lúcia described the third part of the Secret as referring back to and revealing the fulfillment of the prophecy in the second part, where Our Lady had warned that Russia would spread its errors throughout the world if Her requests were not heeded.

During the Angelus Press debate, Kevin Symonds spoke of Sister Lúcia’s letter as one of the indications of how the Third Secret was to be interpreted, after part of the letter was published by the Vatican in its documentation containing the Third Secret itself, The Message of Fatima. However, Christopher Ferrara characterized this kind of evidence as “vague,” and he has repeatedly called into question the authenticity of Sister Lúcia’s letter, even as Kevin Symonds was pointing out that the Carmelites of Coimbra authenticated the letter in their 2013 biography of Sister Lúcia.

The Remnant and the “Fourth Secret”: Dr. Jesse Russell

There is a reason for this rejection, by advocates of the fourth secret, of the authenticity of Sister Lúcia’s own interpretation of the Third Secret. While insisting that the Third Secret must be a description of the crisis in the Church, fourth secret advocates artificially separate the internal crisis within the Church from what Our Lady and Sister Lúcia had associated with the errors of Russia. Shortly after the debate between Kevin Symonds and Christopher Ferrara, The Remnant in its October 31, 2017 issue published an article by Jesse Russell, “The Fog of War and Fatima: A Review of A Pope and a President: John Paul II, Ronald Reagan, and the Extraordinary Untold Story of the 20th Century.” Jesse Russell interprets the book by Paul Kengor as holding that “the message of Fatima was fulfilled by the collaborative efforts of John Paul II and Ronald Reagan to replace authoritarianism in Russia with American liberalism.” And in this context Dr. Russell offers the following hypothesis: “Under Vladimir Putin, Russia appears to be undergoing a revival in Orthodoxy and traditional values.” In other words, for Jesse Russell it is not merely the errors of Russia that represent the primary concern of the Church, but also the errors of what he calls “liberal democracy.”

These statements come after an initial one declaring, “Catholic traditionalists all agree that the third secret was not fully revealed and that the message of Fatima is not complete.” Such a generalized observation overlooks the fact that Roberto de Mattei had published Antonio Borelli Machado’s 2007 essay challenging Antonio Socci’s thesis. Unlike the analysis of Antonio Borelli Machado, that of Dr. Russell shifts the message of Fatima away from Our Lady’s reference to the errors of Russia to what he himself calls “American liberalism,” or what is now known as libertarianism, which he identifies not only with Ronald Reagan but also with John Paul II. This analysis by Jesse Russell is somewhat problematic, and one of the reasons is that the policies of Pope John Paul II and President Ronald Reagan were not entirely identical. For John Paul II continued the policies of Pope Paul VI favoring Ostpolitik or Détente with the Communist governments, while President Reagan pursued a policy of military strength and deterrence. Also, as Cardinal Ratzinger indicated during the press conference in June 2000 – as was explained by Antonio Borelli Machado in his October 2016 interview* – the Vatican postponed the publication of the Third Secret for forty years precisely because the Third Secret posed a problem with regard to this policy.

Our Lady appeared in Fatima in 1917, the year of the Communist revolution in Russia. This was during the First World War, which saw the overthrow of monarchies and the ascendancy of the democracies. However, the rise of the totalitarian regimes of Communism, Nazism and Fascism during the twentieth century positioned democracy no longer as a challenge primarily to monarchy, but instead as a potential obstacle to the rise of totalitarianism. Whereas Communism, Nazism and Fascism are all totalitarian forms of government representing organized opposition to the Church, democracy is a neutral form of government that of itself is neither promoted nor condemned by the Church, but rather is morally judged by her according to whether it upholds or opposes the principles of the natural law. As totalitarianism was on the rise in the decades following Our Lady of Fatima’s warnings, the popes before, during, and immediately after the Second World War made efforts to guide Catholics toward working within democratic governments to defend the rights of the Church and Christian Civilization.

The tendency manifested in the article of Dr. Russell, on the other hand – and, along with him, in the theories of other advocates of the “fourth secret” – is to interpret contemporary history and the role of the Church as a battle not between what Dr. Russell calls “authoritarianism in Russia” and the Church, but between the Church and what is perceived to be “liberal (libertarian) democracy,” seen as the contemporary center of opposition to the Church. In such an interpretation of current history, Sister Lúcia’s May 1982 letter to John Paul II about the Third Secret and the errors of Russia is seen as a distraction from what advocates of the fourth secret perceive to be the primary threat facing the Church, both in its religious and political aspects. To understand this in greater detail, we turn to another recent response to the debate about the Third Secret.

Catholic Family News and the “Fourth Secret”

Matthew Gaspers, the new editor of Catholic Family News after the death of John Vennari, writing in the November 2017 issue, states the following regarding the Angelus Press Conference in October: “Perhaps the most exciting event of the weekend was the debate between Christopher Ferrara and Kevin Symonds over the question, ‘Is the Third Secret Entirely Revealed.’” Mr. Gaspers, after providing some of the highlights of that debate, clearly take sides in his final paragraph describing aspects of the debate: “For my part, I stand with Mr. Ferrara....” Already in the first of four points of the debate that he had highlighted, he hinted at his doubts about a key document cited by Kevin Symonds, Sister Lúcia’s May 1982 letter, which Mr. Gaspers refers to skeptically as “supposedly addressed to Pope John Paul II (no mention of him is found in the excised text).” This letter of Sister Lúcia is an obvious embarrassment to proponents of the fourth secret because the “errors of Russia” mentioned by Sister Lúcia in the letter do not fit into the arguments of the fourth secret theory. If the present threat to the Church is not “authoritarianism in Russia,” in the terms of The Remnant article by Jesse Russell, but in “liberal democracy,” as Dr. Russell suggests, Sister Lúcia’s insistence to Pope John Paul II about the ongoing threat of Russia’s errors seems irrelevant, for Dr. Russell proposes that the Pope and President Reagan had formed an alliance to promote the errors of American liberalism (libertarianism) instead. Therefore the authenticity of Sister Lúcia’s warning to Pope John Paul II about the errors of Russia is understandably called into question.

However, in the very same issue of Catholic Family News, Mr. Gaspers himself presents overwhelming evidence of precisely what the errors of Russia mean in the present historical crisis. The title of the article is “The End of Islam: Russia’s Future Role – Part II.” “To help set the tone,” he states in the first paragraph, “let’s return to the words of Our Lady of Fatima concerning the ‘errors’ of Russia.” He then continues in the next paragraph: “What are the ‘errors’ of Russia? I would argue that one of Russia’s gravest errors, which predates but harmonizes with Communism, is her rejection of the Catholic values of Western civilization.”

Mr. Gaspers has done extensive research on Islam, including its relation to Communism, and he follows the facts where they lead him in describing the present world crisis, precisely in light of the errors of Russia. The alliance between Communism and Islam, not only during the Soviet era but continuing into the post-Soviet era of Putin, is extensively described and documented in his article. He therefore provides historical context for interpreting Sister Lúcia’s May 1982 letter to Pope John Paul II, the same letter he had referred to with skepticism in his previously cited article. And he relates these political events to the Church herself, when he describes them as manifesting Russia’s “rejection of the Catholic values of Western civilization.”

However, while providing this religious and historical context for understanding what Our Lady Fatima meant by the errors of Russia, which Sister Lúcia explained in her May 1982 letter, Mr. Gaspers has also committed himself to defending the existence of a fourth secret, and to an interpretation of history associated with it. In short, is it the errors of Russia, or is it libertarian or “liberal democracy” – which Jesse Russell associates with President Ronald Reagan – that constitutes the contemporary threat to the Church? Even in his article Mr. Gaspers seems to be struggling with this ambiguity, for in the midst of his lengthy documentation of the alliance between Russia and Islamic totalitarianism, he inserts a paragraph on Zionism and the United States, followed by another paragraph that begins with the words, “Back to our discussion” – suggesting, in other words, that American democracy and Zionism needed to be brought into an analysis of the errors of Russia, but as a somewhat artificial insertion, without a sufficiently clear analysis of what the ultimate role of these various political forces might be, above all in relation to the message of Fatima.

Conclusion:

Sister Lúcia’s May 1982 Letter Is Authentic

While Kevin Symonds insisted upon the authenticity of Sister Lúcia’s May 1982 letter to John Paul II, citing the Carmelites of Coimbra as confirming its authenticity, Christopher Ferrara, and Matthew Gaspers who now supports him, appear to flee from this document as a fundamental obstacle to the theory of a fourth secret. Not only did Sister Lúcia explain that the Third Secret was about the errors of Russia, but also in that letter she described the Secret as a “symbolic revelation” – clearly referring to the vision described in the Secret, and not to another interpretation of the Secret that proponents of a fourth secret define as the essence of an alleged missing document.

What became evident in the October 13 debate between Kevin Symonds and Christopher Ferrara was that one cannot dismiss the entire contents of the Vatican’s document The Message of Fatima, simply because of disagreements about certain elements of its interpretation of Fatima. The Vatican in June 2000 had possession of the text of the Third Secret and of related documents. By publishing these texts of fundamental importance, the Vatican still left the door open to further study and discussion about the interpretation of the Third Secret. But proponents of a “fourth secret” have turned their attention away from this documentation toward a new interpretation of Fatima, one based not on all the words of Our Lady in the Second Secret, and Sister Lúcia’s application of Our Lady’s words to the Third Secret, but instead on a new religious and political interpretation of Fatima. It is an interpretation which, while partly that of Our Lady Herself and the seers of Fatima, is also partly an invention of the proponents of the fourth secret themselves – for it is no longer about the errors of Russia primarily, but about the errors of other nations, such as the United States and Israel, selected for political as well as religious reasons, and without an adequate explanation of how this might be related to what was revealed by Our Lady of Fatima.

We need to pray. And we need to read.... If we don't read, we condemn ourselves to chronic stupidity and a conditioning by mass media that have no sympathy for the things we believe. Television is not a channel for serious thought. It's often just the opposite. And the internet, for all its advantages, is too often a source of isolation.

Fatima and the Third Secret:

A Historical Examination based on a Letter of Sister Lúcia & the Carmelite Biography

2017 64p paperback/pamphlet $8. #50083

1. A Serious Error Regarding Fatima; 2. A Controversial Letter of Sister Lúcia; 3. The Mission of Sister Lúcia; 4. Our Lady of Fatima & Russia Part I; 5. Our Lady of Fatima & Russia Part II; 6. Our Lady of Fatima & Russia Part III;

Appendix: Why Was the Third Secret of Fatima Not Released in 1960? An Interview with Antonio Borelli Machado

Elsewhere in this catalog (pp. 22-23) we report on the debate on the Third Secret of Fatima that took place on October 13 between Kevin Symonds and Christopher Ferrara. Shortly afterward an interview conducted by Matthew Hoffman with Kevin Symonds appeared on Catholic World Report, prompting responses on the site from Christopher Ferrara, and then an article and interview featuring Mr. Ferrara on two other web sites. Among Mr. Ferrara's replies to Mr. Symonds, it is one on the Catholic World Report site that merits special attention. It is his statement that he "did not question the authenticity of the purported letter to John Paul II." Mr. Ferrara is referring to Sister Lucia's May 12, 1982 letter to Pope John Paul II, in which she explained to the pope the meaning of the Third Secret.

"Authentic" indicates something genuine, but "purported" often suggests something that is not authentic. Which of the two words expresses Christopher Ferrara's evaluation of Sister Lucia's letter? Mr. Ferrara is willing to accept the document as something written by Sister Lucia, but not as what the Vatican indicated – a letter addressed by Sister Lucia to Pope John Paul II on May 12, 1982. He is forced by the logic of his assumptions to reach this conclusion, that it is only "purported" to be such a letter, because its contents disprove his thesis:

1) In the letter Sister Lucia describes the Third Secret as a "symbolic revelation," an obvious reference to the vision published by the Vatican. If the Third Secret is indeed a symbolic revelation, as Sister Lucia stated, it cannot be another document containing more words of Our Lady, as Mr. Ferrara assumes. This explanation of Sister Lucia constitutes a refutation of Mr. Ferrara's theory.

2) Mr. Ferrara holds that Sister Lucia's statement that Pope John Paul II was "anxious to know" the Secret could not have been written to the pope in May of 1982 because John Paul II had previously read the Secret. Here Mr. Ferrara misunderstands Sister Lucia's Portuguese, because her word for "know" in the Portuguese is "conhecer," which in this context has the meaning of "understand." John Paul II had previously read the text of the symbolic revelation, the vision, on two occasions, but Sister Lucia was acknowledging that he was "anxious" to know in the sense of understand what the vision represented.

Rather than being merely a "purported" letter addressed to Pope John Paul II on May 12, 1982, Sister Lucia's text was an authentic letter written to the pope on that occasion. Mr. Ferrara is forced by the internal logic of his theory to reject the authenticity of the letter as being what the Vatican affirmed it to be, for the text of the letter disproves the two fundamental assumptions upon which the theory of a "fourth secret" rests: 1) that the Third Secret is not solely a symbolic revelation but more words of Our Lady; and 2) while Sister Lucia was explaining the meaning of its symbolism to John Paul II – the meaning which she was given to understand, as indicated in the words spoken to her by Our Lady on January 3, 1944, and as recorded in the Carmelite biography published in 2013 – this explanation given by Sister Lucia does not correspond to what defenders of a missing document assume the Third Secret must contain. The facts contained in Sister Lucia's letter do not conform to the theory of a fourth secret, and therefore the authenticity of the letter is questioned, and it is described by Mr. Ferrara as being merely a "purported letter" instead.

For Lenten Reading & Meditation:

Meditation on the Passion

By a Mistress of Novices

Member of the Institute of the Blessed Virgin Mary

Reprint of the 1922 edition

305 pages, hardcover #88185 $16

From the Introduction by the Editor, Father Reginald Walsh, O.P.

AMONG the many subjects proposed by the Church to us for mental prayer, there is none more profitable than the sublime mystery of Calvary. For even where everything is supremely holy—namely, in the actions of Him Who is the way, and the truth, and the life—the Passion is the culmination of sanctity, the highest exercise of virtue, the greatest cause of merit. Hence devout meditation on it produces most abundant fruit in souls. And for this reason, Saints and Doctors of the Church—those who are specially enlightened, those who spoke from experience, those who are our best guides in the spiritual life—with one accord praise and glorify it...

A Member of the Institute of the Blessed Virgin Mary, who, as Mistress of Novices for about thirty years, had gained great experience in the formation of religious as well as in the varied requirements of conventual life, proposed by means of this book to impart to her Sisters the fruit of her own reflections on the Passion, which one so spiritual and enlightened was exceptionally fitted to compile.

AS might have been anticipated, the excellence of the work, which she had intended for the use of her Sisters, in course of time became known to several persons, in one or other way connected with the Institute of the Blessed Virgin. And among them, some are of opinion that this treasure should no longer be allowed to remain almost hidden in the cloister. They have represented that outside the convents of the Institute there are many devout souls to whom the Meditation would be most acceptable. In accordance with their suggestion, and in compliance with their wish, it is now reprinted...

THAT the book may continue to be a help to advancement in the spiritual life, and become an abundant source of blessings to a still wider circle of readers, is the earnest desire of those who have had to do with its reissue.

A Commentary on The Book of Psalms Saint Robert Bellarmine

Translated by Fr John O'Sullivan 2008 382 pages (from 1866 edition)
with ribbon & dust jacket, hardback, cloth cover

Now Only $46. #55670 – ~~$52.~~

The Psalms constitute the most important Old Testament book, insofar as the Church has made them a part of her prayer, the Divine Office, recited or chanted by clergy and religious, as well as using them in the propers of the Mass, prayers at the foot of the altar, etc. In the early centuries many of the laity knew the Psalms by heart, and during the Middle Ages laymen oftentimes continued to pray the Psalms in the Little Office of the Blessed Virgin, one of the most widely read books during that era. Because the Psalms are filled with prophecies about the Messiah, His Passion and Death, foreshadowed in the sufferings of King David, they nourish the spiritual lives of Catholics, who are called to share in the sufferings of Our Lord as members of His Mystical Body.
